

"We cannot solve our problems with the same thinking we used when we created them." –Albert Einstein

6-Step Planning Process

Why The 6-Step Planning Process

A person's ability to effectively solve problems often defines whether they succeed or fail.

In our research, we found that less than 10% of managers have a problem-solving process. And, less than 1% of organizations have a company-wide problem-solving process that is used by their leaders and employees. So, it comes as no surprise that 82% of leaders feel like their team members could significantly improve their problem-solving skills.

What is The 6-Step Planning Process

The 6-Step Planning Process is a simple, easy-to-learn, easy-to-teach process for solving any problem or challenge. Through this course, your leaders and teams learn the skills to solve any problem or challenge—big or small.

Imagine how great it would be to have employees who are solution focused so that rather than focusing on the problem, instead they are empowered to deliver a solution and plan. Not only are they solution focused, imagine how nice it would be to have a team that is aligned, using a common process to tackle any challenge—that's the Six-Step Planning Process.

What Does the 6-Step Planning Process Teach?

In learning the Six Step Planning Process, individuals and teams effectively learn how to plan and solve problems as well as:

- Shift the playing field from the problem to the vision—the right starting point!
- Identify the root causes of what's causing the gap between the current reality and vision
- Lead a productive team discussion & brainstorm to identify the possible solutions
- Identify and correctly select the very best solution(s) to achieve the vision
- Test and vet the best solution(s) for validity and effectiveness
- Develop a clear action plan of who will do what by when
- Red team the plan to identify any missing pieces or additions
- Learn how to conduct a team debrief to generate lessons learned and repeat successes

Who Needs the 6-Step Planning Process?

Nobody gets a degree in problem solving, particularly as a leader or in a team environment. While many leaders and people have specific vocational and leadership skills, few are well versed in how to lead a team through a difficult challenge or problem. Here's who this skill benefits and how:

Leaders—Leaders can better mobilize & align teams, get a plan in hand, and create solutions.

“Only three things happen naturally in organizations: friction, confusion, and underperformance. Everything else requires leadership.” —Peter Drucker

Teams—team members understand the end goal, their role within the team, what they need to do, when they need to do it, and to whom they are accountable. They have a specific planning process that can be used time and time again—it becomes a part of the culture.

Individuals—individuals can apply this same process to individual challenges & opportunities such as health, emotional well-being, finances, or an important relationship.

Organizational Benefits of The 6-Step Planning Process

Private, public, & government organizations such as Charles Schwab, the Dallas Cowboys, The Center for Disease Control, Hensel Phelps, and others have all reported the following benefits of this Process and Program:

Increased Productivity & Efficiency—They know how to plan and execute the plan quickly.

Increased Performance—Participants consistently achieve or surpass their goals.

Improved Teamwork and Accountability—There is increased collaboration, unity, and alignment.

Leadership Development—Leaders become better planners and problem-solvers.
